R Cross Auxiliary Organized—A Gritty Boy—A Bad Runaway.

RED CROSS AUXILIARY.

The first meeting of the Williamstown auxiliary of the National Red Cross association was held on Thursday, June 30, at 10:30 a. m. in the rooms of the Grand Army of the Republic, which were kindly loaned for this purpose by the members of the G. A. R. The meeting was called to order by the temporary chairman, Mrs. L. D. Woodbridge. The following officers were elected: Mrs. Samuel P. Blagden, chairman; Mrs. Richard Rice, secretary; Mrs. Henry Subin, treasurer; Mrs. Blagden made a few well chosen and eloquent remarks. She gave the history, minutely, of the Red Cross association, and told of the work it had already accomplished, and added that the special object of the Williamstown auxiliary was to pay the salaries of trained nurses, amounting to $25 a month for each nurse. Mrs. Lawrence Hutton, of New York, in a very happy manner explained what had been done in Princeton, N. J., and how the children might help by rolling bandages and in other ways help the Red Cross society. The meeting was largely attended and the appeal for help was responded to most generously, the treasurer receiving at the close of the meeting nearly $200 in sums varying from 10 cents to $25. She also received many pledges for more. Another meeting will be held in the same place, and at the same hour on Thursday, July 14. It is earnestly desired that Williamstown should show her interest in the welfare of the brave men who are fighting for her honor, by subscribing generously to this humane cause. It has been suggested that the children should co-operate with their elders by giving some of the money this year which they ordinarily spend for fireworks on the Fourth of July. Any sum will be gratefully received and promptly acknowledged by the treasurer, Mrs. N. Henry Subin, schoolhouse, Wp. J. Keithwood, the man.

A BAD RUNAWAY.

Misses Ida and Millicent Ford had a runaway Thursday afternoon, and a bad smashup at the station crossing. They were driving down Cole avenue when their horse became unmanageable and ran furiously. The crossing gates were down, but the horse ran around them. The buggy struck a pole which holds the danger signal and the women were thrown out. They were badly shaken up and considerably scratched about their faces. They were taken to their home on East Main street and attended by Dr. Lloyd. The horse ran a short distance and was stopped on the track in front of the depot. The buggy was badly broken.

A GRITTY BOY.

Homar White, who enlisted at Hooksett Falls, N. Y., and was rejected by the examiners, felt greatly disappointed in not being able to go to the front with the other boys of this town. He is bound to enter the service, however, if possible, and Wednesday night went to Adams and called. Such grit and perseverance as he is displaying are the kind a soldier should have and he ever reaches the ranks he may be trusted to give a good account of himself.

The articles disposed of by ticket at the most supper Wednesday night were drawn as follows: Boy's suit, Mrs. F. D. Noel; push chair, Fred La-zotte; hammock, William W. Akey; pair of shoes, Mr. Welch, of Troy; umbrella, William Cummings; box of cigars, Frank Laplante; case of soap, Joseph H. Noel. The supper was so plentiful that much was left and a quantity of pie and cake was auctioned off. The net proceeds amounted to about $120.

A. M. Stevens is moving a barn. A. E. Hall has bought a lot on Cole avenue, of Charles Russell for about $800. N. S. Daniels took a group picture of the volunteers who left town Wednesday, and will present a copy to the parents of each. If any other desire them they can be obtained of Mr. Daniels.

F. H. Daniels has secured 23 volunteers and needs only two more to complete his list. It is probable that arrangements will be made to have the men examined here or in North Adams, as some of them are not able to stand the expense of a trip to South Framingham on uncertainty.

The Mark Hopkins club baseball team seriously feels the loss of Keete and Dale, two of its best players, who have gone to the war.

George Larabee has gone to visit relatives in West Braintree and Boston for two weeks.

A. L. Simonds and E. A. Towne are having the walks on their places on Southworth avenue concreted.

A "wargraph," showing moving pictures of the war, will be exhibited at the opera house, July 1 and 2.

About 30 members of the F. M. T. A. society will go to Hinsdale, July 4 to attend the county field day. They will wear white duck pants and white caps, and will go in company with the North Adams men.

In police court Thursday Edward Crowley was fined $3.00 for drunkenness, and Henry Fairbanks was fined $15 for overdriving a horse. Buisie Lebeau was tried on complaint of assault and battery and drunkenness and was discharged in both cases.

The drill corps which has been drilling under William Fitzgerald has been disbanded. The members talk of organizing a club and if this is done drilling probably be taken up again.

A daughter was born June 29 to Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Noel.

John C. Jay, Jr., of New York, Williams, 1901, is in town for a few days.

Fred Stanley, of Bridgeport, Conn., is visiting at the home of his wife's mother, Mrs. John Goodrich. Mrs. Stanley came about two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Kellogg have moved into their new house on Meacham street.

Mrs. F. O. Noble has returned from a tour of the Hooksett Falls, N. Y.

Rev. George P. Merrett has gone to South Williamstown for the summer.

When animals' hair grows thin in patches over their bodies and they rub and scratch themselves in these places, as though an itching was there, they have mange. Hoard's Dairymen gives the following cure: Thoroughly wash all the exposed parts with tar soap and hot water. Rub quite dry, then rub oil 40 ounces. This is to be well shaken each time before using, a full dose of physic to each. This will do evident service. Wherever you see evidence of it, itches apply the oil. This will do equally if the case should be lice.

There is a difference between "serviceable soundness" and "absolute soundness" in a horse. The United States government used to require absolute soundness when there was no war, but now serviceable soundness will do, so much is the army in want of horses.

In New York city is a hospital for sick horses. The veterinarians who conduct it are kept busy and make a good thing out of it. A clinic, with lectures on horse diseases is attached to the establishment. One of the animals taken to the hospital was an old white mare whose owner declared she was off her feed. He could not tell what was the matter, but she refused to eat at all and was thin as a rail. The veterinarian opened the old mare's mouth and found she was starving to death. An upper tooth had grown down so long that it pierced her lower gums every time she tried to chew and hurt her so that she gave up the attempt. The poor old dumb thing had no way to let her owner know what pain she suffered. The veterinarian cut the tooth off, and she was as well as ever. This suggests that it is a good plan to examine the teeth of old horses from time to time.

so prevent hens from laying on the shorter feathers on one wing. The longest may be left, and when the wings are folded the shortened ends will not be seen.

Just before the early pullets begin to lay their combs will swell and become red. The sign is a good one for those who wish to select the earliest layers from among a larger number. —St. Louis Republic.

There's lots of things I cannot understand, It really makes me wonder how I try. One thing I know, however, my little hand Because the sun is hot up in the sky.

I never understand why birds eat worms Instead of pie and puddings full of plums. I can't see why a baby always squirms Or why big boys are afraid of little sums.

I cannot understand why dogs bark Instead of talking sense like you and me, And why the sun don't shine when it is dark Instead of when it's light I cannot see.

I wonder what it is makes children grow And why they have no wings, like little flies; But, puzzlingest of all the things I know, Is why grandma wears wrinkles on her brow!

IF I KNEW.

If I knew the box where the smiles are kept, No matter how large the key Or strong the bolt, I would try so hard 'Till I found it, I know, for sure.

Then over the land and sea broadcast I'd scatter the smiles to play, 'Till the children's faces might hold them fast For many and many a day.

If I knew a box that was large enough To hold all the flowers of sweet, I would try to gather them, every one, From nursery, school and street.

Then, folding and holding, I'd pack them in and turn the monster key, I'd have a giant to drop the box To the depths of the deep, deep sea. —Boston Watchman.

NOT A JUDGE OF CUSTOMERS.

Mistake Made by the Clerk Who Had Charge of the Fans.

The languid young man in the fan department of a leading dry goods store was approached by an elderly lady, who asked to be shown some fans. The young salesman reached a languid hand back to a shelf and took down a box of spangled and feather edged fans.

"I would prefer something quieter and more serviceable," suggested the customer. He gave her a long look, which seemed to take in every detail of her toilet, and with the same languid air that characterized his first movements lifted a box of cotton back fans to the counter. Spreading one of these wide open, he waved it gently to and fro while he remarked:

"I know just what you want. One of these will be good for any occasion—this green satin, for instance."

"Oh, thanks," murmured the customer, and, inquiring the price, she paid for the article and waited for her parcel and change.

"Nice weather we are having," said the young man condescendingly as he restored his fans to order.

"I'm so glad you like it," said his customer, gazing wistfully into vacancy.

Before he could be sure that no sarcasm was meant the package came, and he counted the change into the customer's hand with a shrewd eye of alertness than he had hitherto displayed. Then she got back at him.

"I'm so glad to have met you," she said, "it is such a comfort to find some one who knows just what you want! Now, when I came into the store, I expected to buy a fan with real tortoise shell sticks and a lace border to carry to a wedding I shall attend tonight. But you know what I wanted and you sold me a fan for 80 cents, a great saving for me too. I thought I wanted the other, but you knew I didn't. Thanks and goodbye."

She walked off, and the young man who had sized her up for a purchase in the line of any old thing is hoping she does not know his employer and is now willing to give customers the right to choose for themselves. —Chicago Times-Herald.

Against the Grain.

Those who go among the poor to seek their elevation have need of the same subtle tact and respectful sympathy which are required in dealing successfully with human nature in every department of life. Doctor Wines tells of a visitor who entered a poor woman's home, helped herself to a seat and began with the awful question:

"Does your husband drink?" "No," replied the insulted wife. "Does yours?"

He added the story of an Indianapolis kindergarten who called at the door of a really degraded woman and was met in a mood of sullen defiance.

"Did you come from the mission?" demanded the woman.

"No."

"Are you going to preach me a sermon?" "No."

"Did you bring a Bible?" "No. I came from the kindergarten, and I want to talk to you about your little boy."

"Come in."

There is a proverb which says, "Against the grain nothing goes." The mission and Bible people had probably failed to secure the good will of this woman because they stroked their poor sister the wrong way. —Youth's Companion.

Reprieved the Commander.

It is said of the late Bishop Quintard of Tennessee that he was the only man from whom the late Senator Harris ever accepted a reprieve. Senator Harris, as of course you know, was an officer in the Confederate army. Bishop Quintard was a chaplain in his command. One day the chaplain happened to overhear the general berating some soldiers. The general was illuminating his remarks with highly colored and picturesque profanity. The soldiers were hopelessly stupid.

"Why," roared the general, with illuminations, "why in"—more illuminations—"don't you"—explosive expletives—"obey orders?"

The chaplain stepped forward.

"General," said he, "how can you expect your soldiers to obey your orders when you let them hear you disobey the command of your superior officer?"

The general whirled about and glared at the chaplain. Then his face softened. Off came his hat.

"Sir," said he, "you are right. I will not swear another oath till this war is over."

And they say he kept his word. —Washington Post.

The Price of His Silence.

Young Man—Sir, I have come to demand the hand of your daughter.

Banker—Sir? What do you mean, you young—

Young Man—Her hand, sir, is the price of my silence.

Banker—My! My! This insolence is unbearable. George, call a policeman!

Young Man—One moment, Sir, you don't understand. I know nothing of your affairs, so do not for one moment imagine that you have been guilty of any wrongdoing. The silence I alluded to is of another sort. I am the young man who practices on a cornet in the boarding house next door.

Banker—Oh, take her, my son, and be happy. —Pearson's Weekly.

For Home Effect.

"Why did you insist on an executive session?" asked the intimate acquaintance.

"Did you have anything so very mysterious or important to say on that subject?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum. "But I desired to make my constituents think I had." —Washington Star.

Persistence is the road to success. The only known exception to this rule is the case of a hen sitting on a china egg. —Exchange.

A trenchant French proverb says: "It is easy to eat the wedding breakfast; not so easy to eat the weekday dinners that come after."

Mollie's Problem.

There's lots of things I cannot understand, It really makes me wonder how I try. One thing I know, however, my little hand Because the sun is hot up in the sky.

I never understand why birds eat worms Instead of pie and puddings full of plums. I can't see why a baby always squirms Or why big boys are afraid of little sums.

I cannot understand why dogs bark Instead of talking sense like you and me, And why the sun don't shine when it is dark Instead of when it's light I cannot see.

New Table.

The first table was probably the stump of the biggest tree. The earliest Greek and Roman tables were round. Then they adopted the square shape to favor the reclining posture which characterized their later and more effeminate days.

History mentions some expensive tables. Cicero gave as much as $9,000 for one with a richly grained top; and a table of citrus wood, which belonged to King Juba, sold at auction for $10,000.

Good tables are indispensable articles in every house, especially in a library. Here is one in carved white oak, executed from a private design, and of a shape and size never before known in ready made furniture. The sides are paneled and carved. The corners are carried on a full curve, with an overhanging top. The lower shelf is cut away slightly. The sides are arched and they end in claw feet. It is a very dignified piece of cabinet work, and will impart an air to the dingiest room. The price is only $22. There are 1,050 square inches of writing surface in the top.

Stopped a Runaway Horse.

William Thomas made a fine stop of a runaway horse on Park street Thursday evening. The animal was a large grey hitched to a light buggy. It started from W. A. Ballou's near the Hoosac Valley park and made things lively all the way to this village. Several bicyclists and teams had narrow escapes from being run into at Renfrew. Mr. Thomas saw his horse coming on Park street and he ran out and caught hold of a shaft on the wagon. By good running he got up to the horse's head and caught hold of a rein and stopped him. No serious damage was done.

Black knot should be removed from plum and cherry trees as soon as discovered.

Better let the hogs or poultry eat the fruit than let it lie on the ground under the trees and rot.

In marketing fruit do not wait until fully ripe, or it will be in a damaged condition when put on the market.

By taking care to kill the first pests that appear in the garden the work of keeping plants rid of them will be greatly lessened.

Uncleared wood ashes make one of the very best fertilizers for the strawberry. Ground bone is excellent to apply to the raspberries.

Go through the orchard occasionally and see that there are no suckers growing from the roots of the trees to sap the strength of the main stem.

All kinds of fruit trees, especially peach trees, should be headed low, and all branches that grow out long, slim or tall should be cut back to a proper length.—Exchange.

AMERICAN BREED.

For Either Road or Racing Stock There Are Suitable Animals.

An English horseman says, "All beauty, resolute endurance and extreme racing speed at a trot or rest in the blood of the Arab." This may be set down as fact. All the merits of the English thoroughbred are to be traced to the qualities inherent in the original Arabian blood, from which the race horse was developed. The most famous trotting families in America likewise trace directly back to Arabian blood. Given the blood of the desert steed, with its spirit, ambition, endurance and speed, you can make of it by development and training anything, saddle runner, trotter, pacer or carriage horse.

One of the most noted American sires was old Henry Clay. His descendants are scattered far and wide and are known for their beauty and lofty, spirited carriage wherever they are seen.

Talk of your hackneys and Cleveland bays! Here is a young American stallion, bred on both sides from the best of Henry Clay's descendants, that for beauty, action, high stepping and all the qualities that go to make a noble horse is the equal of any animal living. His portrait was printed originally in The Country Gentleman.

He is a blood bay 16 hands high and near of kin to some famous trotters. Wherever the old Clay blood, with its plentiful Arabian dash, is there you have something uncommon. We commend the appearance of this animal to those rich Americans who think they must import their riders and drivers from England and France.

Beef Calves.

The Kansas state board of agriculture embodies in a report the recommendations of a large number of the beef growers of the state in reference to matters they had learned from experience. The report says:

Their recommendation for the feeding of calves the first winter is wheat bran and shelled corn or bran and oats in sufficient quantities, with hay or other coarse feed, to keep them thrifty and growing.

A large majority favor dehorned or hornless cattle and say that for the fattening lot such cattle have a 10 per cent greater value than those with horns. Thirty reports gives them a greater value of 17 cents per 100 pounds, 26 place it at $2.95 per head. The higher price they say fat cattle without horns are likely to sell for averages 13 1/2 cents per 100 pounds.

The time required for properly and safely changing cattle from a grass to a full or maximum grain diet is 23 days, or from cornstalk field 16 days.

With two exceptions, all say, extra labor considered, it is not profitable in Kansas to keep fattening cattle tied in stalls.

Hay Rack For Sheep.

Mr. L. Ogilvy of Colorado sends to The Breeder's Gazette the drawing and description of this sheep feeding rack. The animals cannot rub the wool off their necks trying to get at the feed; neither will the seed, dust and rubbish fall into the wool, and they cannot pull the hay down and mess it over so they will not eat it afterward.

The rack is easily made. Mr. Ogilvy says that with it you can have lambs running about the feed lot without their getting on top of the hay, which ordinarily cannot be done. He describes the device thus:

This rack is to a certain extent a self feeder, and, though I would not recommend feeding sheep in any other way than what they will eat at one time, it is an advantage to have a little hay left for the weaker ones. They waste very little hay with this rack, and as it has no bottom it can be raised and then moved by one man.

Make the frame out of 2 by 6's edge-wise. For block at bottom saw 2 by 6's diagonally. Nail a 12 inch board along the bottom lengthwise; then take three 10 inch boards and nail up the front. Set bottom 10 inch board level with the 12 inch or about one inch higher. Make the rack with a frame about every four feet, omitting one piece except at the center, and this is not necessary unless you are going to move them about. For rack to feed only one side make 18 inches between studs. You can make the sides separate and set them against light posts. Do not nail, but wire so you can raise them.

After trying dozens of remedies for constipation, without success, my wife got a bottle of Frost's Constipation Cure, and it benefited her beyond anything she could realize or expect. I have tried several so-called pile cures, but never received any benefit until I tried Dr. Frost's Pile Cure, which relieved me as if by magic. I have suffered terribly at times and am glad to have found a remedy that will cure.

Having been troubled with nervous debility for a long time I thought I would try a bottle of Frost's Nervous Debility Cure. After taking the first bottle I found myself a great deal better. I got three more bottles and am now rejoiced to tell you I am cured and as well as ever I was in my life.

POINTS OF LAW.

A bill of sale of all of one's property to a certain creditor as security for the debt cannot be construed as a general assignment for the benefit of all creditors.

One who makes a false representation on which another relies is liable, whether or not he knew of its falsity, where he had full opportunity to know that it was false.

A sale of goods free on board makes the common carrier at the place of shipment the buyer's agent and answerable for damages resulting from delay in transportation.

Where a telegram making an offer and demanding immediate acceptance was received at 10 p. m. Saturday and acceptance not made till Monday it did not bind the offeror.

For the seller's failure to deliver goods according to the terms of the bargain the measure of damages is the difference between the contract price and the market value of the article at the time and place where it was deliverable.

Where an insurance company has denied all liability and refused to pay the loss or any part of same it waives the right to insist upon proofs of loss and cannot claim the benefit of a 60 day clause in the policy, and insured may sue at once.—Recent Decisions of Highest Courts.

THE COOKBOOK.

Always rub a little soft (not melted) butter over the top of bread dough when in a mass after being molded into loaves. This prevents a hard crust.

To powder parsley, dip the bunch quickly into boiling water to make it a brilliant green, then put into a hot oven for a few minutes to dry thoroughly. Break into fine flakes.

If you want something new and rather nice, bake your bread in baking powder cans. Fill the cans half full and do not cover. The bread will bake in a few minutes. Slice thin and alternate on the plate with slices of brown bread.

If a piece of beef is roasted rare and half of it is left, this may be put in a roasting pan, with four ounces of suet under the meat and the same amount on top, and roasted for from 20 to 25 minutes in a hot oven, and it will be as good as if it had never been cooked before.

NO FALSE RETURNS.

Here are Plain Facts, Endorsed by a North Adams Citizen.

Few people will admit a failure while there is a chance for argument. Many people claim success when no one rises to dispute it. Myself, however, was to do so to place our claims where doubt is out of the question. We are doing this every day and North Adams appreciates it. Now to get right down to the point, everybody knows that there is many an aching back, many a lame and painful one, the suffering from which makes life miserable, but having tried many remedies, the sufferer not finding success looks upon all who profess to have a cure with the skepticism of a skeptic; and yet one more struggle with the right ally and the back is free. Others have done it right here in North Adams, why not you? Read what Wm. Henry Benton, 23 Walnut street, says: "In 1881 from overlifting I strained my back. I was engaged in a paper mill and with another man was accustomed to lift a calendar weighing 1000 pounds. I did not mind it at the time, but suddenly one day my kidneys were back on me. My back became so sore I could not work, then urinary trouble followed which gave me infinite distress and annoyance. I doctored and doctored for it. I may have occasionally got some trifling help, but most remedies and prescriptions did me no good whatever. I grew worse and was forced to use a catheter to assist nature. It is hard to describe what I suffered. A person in torment like myself, naturally grows interested in remedies that claim to cure the ills he is permeated with and Doan's Kidney Pills caught my eye. I got them at Burlingame & Darby's store, and before I finished treatment, the secretions were normal, my back had ceased to ache and I gained every day. Doan's Kidney Pills are the only remedy that ever removed my urinary trouble totally. Is not that a sufficient recommendation for me?" Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, or sent by mail on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

HORSELESS WAGON IS COMING.

The international exhibition of automobile vehicles in Paris is pronounced a great success. A large number of vehicles are on exhibition, together with innumerable attachments, such as sprang into existence when it became established that the bicycle was to become a popular vehicle for ladies and gentlemen. The exhibit shows that inventors have been applying themselves to the task of making operation of the automobile vehicle sure and safe. One of the safety appliances prevents back-sliding by the vehicle while ascending hills.

As was the case with the electric cars, and as is still apparent to some extent in their operations, the drivers of the automobiles are in the habit of indulging in dangerous bursts of speed. The danger to pedestrians from this source has come to be so great in Paris, that the head of the police department has taken steps to modify the speed of the automobiles, and to arrange a manner of signaling by the police to drivers who are permitting the vehicles to approach the danger limit in the matter of speed.

Although automobile vehicles have not yet been used to any great extent in the United States, one of the most striking vehicles in the Paris exhibit is the product of an American factory. This shows that Yankee genius is equal to the demands of the occasion in the development of the automobile vehicle, as it was in the cases of the electric car and the bicycle. It will be found that when the automobile vehicle comes into use in the United States, its advent will be marked by improvements that will be influential in the direction of displacing the horse for light delivery purposes, if not for heavy hauling in the cities, and in parts of the country where the country roads are in condition for use by horseless wagons.

The summer vacation season is formally begun today.

The Fourth of July orations will indicate that the supply of patriots has not been depleted by the war.

Hon. John W. Wamaker finds that there are cheaper counters in politics than in the dry goods business.

The time has arrived when the amount of work a man does is popularly measured by the condition of his collar.

Still undismayed, the Iowa Prohibitionists are talking about putting another fleet into the campaign this fall.

Those who fall in battle are mourned for as men who have done their duty to their country and deserve the remembrance of the Nation.

It is now reported that the third Spanish squadron will sail in fireworks, providing Watson leaves any Spanish seacoast for it to sail out from.

It appears that the Boston panic has been getting in his deadly work along the coast of Spain where inhabitants are putting out their lights of night to scare him away.

Populism was born in fierce contention. But the Kansas farmers are too well satisfied with present results to continue the contention beyond the point of paying off their mortgages.

The Williamstown officers are not out for beer, when they can find it in the temperance town, and do not intend to be discouraged by the capture of an empty wagon by mistake. They claim that the last laugh will be theirs.

The Fourth of July committee intends to proceed in spite of the failure of the council to rise to the limit of municipal patriotism, and to see what that body will do at its regular meeting. The committee will be careful not to draw on the city's unappropriated money, and to pay for the bills if necessary.

A son of Senator Atkins, it seems, has managed to slide into the volunteer army as a private without detection. Something is certainly wrong.

Too much condemnation cannot be given a person who starts a false rumor concerning the life and safety of the local volunteers in Cuba. Incalculable pain is inflicted on the family of every man concerning whom such a report is started. There are prompt penalties for the wretch who starts a false cry of "fire" in a crowded building. He is of the same class who willfully starts a false rumor of the kind now so prevalent.

A business man on Main street is seriously considering the moving of his establishment to some less central locality, claiming that the loss in business would be fully met by the saving in involuntary taxes collected by solicitors for fairs, programs, missionary gatherings, and every good work. It is an unwritten law that every dealer on Main street must support every such enterprise which is brought to his attention.

Our daily sight of ourselves as others see us, from Pittsfield, is as follows: "The governor did very well in the personnel of the Groveland commission, but failed a little in his geography, the same way the legislature did, when it located the new state normal school a few years ago."

"A deputy revenue collector is to be located in Pittsfield. This does not signify that a Pittsfield man will get the office, but considering the drowsy condition of the North Adams brethren, we rather suspect that the appointment will come this way."

There is a loud call in the Philadelphia Press to hurry up the high school and the statement is editorially made that: "The largest class in the history of the high school will knock at the entrance doors in September. There are not nearly enough accommodations for the boys who have just passed the examinations. The threat has been thrown out that it may be necessary to close the doors against some of them for lack of room." This is mentioned by way of comfort for ourselves—the kind of comfort that misery sometimes gets. It may be consoling to think that North Adams isn't "the only one."

The promoters of the Independence day celebration in this city are commendable for their energy in attempting to provide an enthusiastic observance at short notice. There should be every effort to make the day, this year, a memorable one, but it should be remembered that patriotism may run as high in the man who does something for the assistance of the boys at the front as in him who wildly disports himself in a reckless scamper after a greased pig. The example of Troy in providing a thoroughly suitable celebration, most fitting to the time, and yet cutting down expense to send the surplus to aid the volunteers, is well worthy of consideration.

Judge Dewey, of the superior court, introduced a new and interesting feature in libel cases at this session of the court. He instructed the jury in the case on trial to return separate verdicts for injury to the plaintiff's business and injury to his feelings. It is interesting to notice that the jury found for the plaintiff on account of his feelings, deciding that his business was affected. This introduces a new and somewhat startling element for the care-driven editor to ponder. Since the plaintiff's business was injured, the disputed item being purely in regard to his business, the jury decides, practically, that the item was not untrue. But the man's finer nature was touched, and his feelings injured to the value of several dollars. What a broad field is here opened for criticized officers of the American army and for political candidates.

THE TATTLER.

Mrs. Harriet Emerson is the city auditor of Ogden, Utah. She was formerly a resident of Lacrosse, Wis.

Miss Betty Runnels, who has just been graduated from the law department of Tulane university, is the first woman to practice law in the state of Louisiana.

Miss Hestie, an Australian woman, purposes to explore the Solomon Islands, the home of the fiercest cannibals known. Hitherto white men have been able to penetrate only a few miles inland.

Mrs. Mary Maria Gray, who died in San Francisco the other day, was one of the most earnest supporters of the Baptist church and during her life gave $1,000,000 to that denomination and to charitable institutions.

Her royal highness Princess Nellie Botschmeyer, eldest daughter of King George of the Greeks, a powerful tribe on the west coast of Africa, is a pupil at the Colored Normal school of Baltimore. She is 18 and very black.

Mrs. William H. Hook of Oshkosh, Wis., has applied for a widow's pension of $12 a month. Her husband was mustered in as a private on Friday, May 10, became ill on Saturday and died on Sunday at Camp Harvey of stomach trouble.

Mrs. Lola Small Jackson, daughter of Sam Small, the revivalist, has started a weekly paper in Atlanta called 'The Southern Star.' It will be devoted to society news and gossip, the drama and music and women's interests generally.

That venerable veteran, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, has been re-elected president of the New England Woman's club. This was at the club's thirtieth annual meeting, and six of the original members, Mrs. Howe among them, received the guests.

Mrs. John Beverly of Machias, Me., examined a pin cushion recently which she had used for 37 years and found therein 110 needles as bright as new. The cushion was made of sheep's wool, and probably the oil in the wool acted as a non-corrosive.

Mario Rigo, the legal wife of the kingly addler who dined with the Princess of May, is crazy through her failure to win her husband back and recently attempted suicide by jumping from the third story of a hotel in Venice. Her delusion is that she is a princess and can now assert her claims to her husband against Chimay.

Mrs. Barnesley of Linn, Mo., possesses a highly valued heirloom in the shape of a volume, entitled 'A Dictionary of All Religions, Christian, Jewish or Pagan,' which was printed in 1704. It is bound by hand and bound in well preserved leather. The book was brought over from Ireland by Mrs. Barnesley's grandfather.

LATE FASHIONS FROM PARIS

Paris, June 11.—Dinners and musicals are still plentiful, and fashionable women find their engagement books filled to overflowing. The lesser royalties who have lately been visiting here have left their particular impress on the fashions of the moment. The tiny Dutch bonnets and full sleeved and guimped frocks transform the little maids of the moment into veritable Holland damsels. This is an echo of the popularity aroused by the pretty and agreeable little Queen Wilhelmina, who honored the gay capital for a few days earlier in the season.
The great gulf that divides the German and the French stands a fair chance of being bridged over since the empress of Germany finds that she may patronize the Parisian modistes without loss of caste as a patriot. The empress has hitherto been known as the least elegant woman of the feminine royalties, but since his majesty the German emperor has turned his versatile mind to the designing of costumes for his consort the Princess of Wales, said to be the best dressed woman in Europe, may well tremble for her supremacy.
The season's fashions seem to have a suggestion of the German taste. The startling shades and the combination of colors such as blue and green are to my eye quite Teutonic.
Blue is the most important color of the summer, not excepting black and white, which in combination make a close second. Innumerable are the shades of blue. They are circulated in their different degrees of intensity under such names as ciel, turquoise, cuirasse, pervanche, iacithe, clype, busard, lobelia, bluet, lavan, centaur, arlesienne and barbeau bleu. Six of these shades are almost lavender and are most trying to the average complexion. The latest shades of green are undine, triton and neptune, all suggestive of the sea in its various aspects under sun and shade. The caspian green is of a rather yellowish tint. Nile green, emerald green and a tint called russe have also much popularity.
A delicate blue promises to have a special vogue, as also does one, a shade of marine blue, barbeau. A striking modification of turquoise. In sky blue there are also six shades, the variations on the theme of blue surpassing even the variety in Joseph's famous coat.
A costume that effectively displayed the possibilities of the new blues was seen at the Longchamps races. The foundation of the gown was of foulard glaze in three shades of the medium blues, the highest being a turquoise and the design resembling the effect given in moire, if one can imagine the stripes having a vertical line effect on skirt and bodice.
Over the silk was a black net overdress fantastically lined with fine jet. A girdle of white satin ribbon was knotted at the side. A doubled flounce of black chiffon drawn out to look like a narrow puffing outlined an overskirt upon the net overdress. A high flounce went around the bottom of the skirt. The bodice had a pointed vest of folded white chiffon appearing back and front and bordered with a puffing of black chiffon. A high collar and small round yoke of shaped white satin ribbons were surmounted by a tiny flounce of black chiffon instead of lace. The sleeves were capped with tiny butterfly ruffles and finished with a similar flounce at the wrist. With the costume was worn a blue straw hat of rustic shape almost covered with the daintiest of blue flowers in harmonizing colors.

Another girl in blue was the stunning maid I saw in the train of one of the parties of royalty now in town. She is, I fancy, from her appearance and company, a Danish girl and has the fair skin and dazzling color, with the sheen of shining golden hair, that seem the birthright of the women of the north. The gown was made of lightweight cloth in what is known as neptune blue. The skirt was very full around the bottom and fitted over the hips. From the hem to the waist it was covered with flounces, chenille edged and in carefully graded sizes. An overskirt formed chenille embroidered panels at the sides, opening over the flounces. A vest and girdle, with short tabs of crimson silk, were well set off by the chenille embroidered bolero jackets cut down the front of the waist in three large scallops. A high collar of the silk was softened by a frill of gray chiffon edged with white lace. The tight fitting sleeves were made rather full over the shoulders, a double fullness of the cloth forming narrow epaulets over the shoulder. With this gown the fair Norsewoman wore a short backed sailor hat of soft, coarse scarlet straw, under the brim at the side of which were scarlet geraniums, the cluster matching the color of the straw and the silk on the gown. A little back from the front, above the brim, was a fanciful true lover's knot of black straw. Green geranium leaves and scarlet blossoms trimmed the brim of the hat.
A handsome frock of pervanche blue silk made for a young matron, one of the many seen at the benefit given under the auspices of the Duchesse de Vendome for the French mission to Madras, was also heavily chiffon trimmed. Broad ruchings of black trimmed the skirt, over which fell a pointed front overskirt edged with a ruching of the chiffon. The bodice was quite simple, with its high collar and ruchings of black chiffon over the rather full corsage. A short summer wrap, part jacket and part mantle, was fashioned of the chiffon, one part of the wrap fitting the figure jacket fashion and the upper part falling over the shoulders in the form of a rather elaborate cape made of a deep flounce of the chiffon, headed by three frillings, a high collar and bows of ribbon. A bow of gauze ribbon at the left side was knotted with a cluster of violets. A bonnet, with wings of blue ribbon, bits of real lace and sprays of forget-me-nots, was worn with this toilet.

At the wedding of Mlle. Andree Worth, one of the recent events in Paris, the great Worth introduced some novel ideas in elaborately trimmed skirts. The wedding gown of white satin had a deep volante around the bottom of the skirt, which was trimmed with clusters of orange and myrtle blossoms and leaves. A train shaped like a peacock's tail, outlined with the orange and myrtle, was a very striking innovation. The train was lace lined. A magnificent veil of real lace was arranged on the back of the coiffure and was a marvel of graceful draping, as it is to be supposed Eise Worth supervised its arrangement.
The maid of honor was attired in a robe of rose mousseline de sole, over which were arranged star shaped ruchings that almost covered the gown. The corsage was cut decollete over a guimpe of guipure, the tight sleeves being made of guipure over the pink. The new guipure is cut in large designs, apparently on a batiste foundation.
One of the most striking effects in guipure was achieved by the modiste who fashioned the costume in which Mlle. Sorel, a beauty of the Parisian stage, recently charmed all eyes at the opera. Delicious is a fit word in describing the effect of that masterly combination of white guipure and transparent silk of the same color. The high collar was of guipure, as also were the tight fitting sleeves.
Beautiful are the fans shown in the shops. They are certain to add great effectiveness to "my lady's" gauzy evening and dinner gowns. One is of black lace, mounted on handles of smoked mother of pearl, caught by a golden clasp. A painting representing the weeping Ariadne on her lonely rock is executed with a daintiness that would do credit to Watteau. The central picture is flanked by two smaller ones, the one on the right showing Ariadne deserted by Theseus, the other discovering her approached by Bacchus.

Brussels point lace is another favorite fabric for covering the fans. White woman will be those fragile fans of heliotrope lace and gauze, the pearl mounting dyed a delicate lavender. Over the fan glitter tiny points of silver, like stars in a Mediterranean twilight.

Copies of any of these beautiful fans, this especial variety of fan. Feather fans are really less expensive than lace ones. Pale blue, pale pink and light green evening fans are noticed and are glittering with sequins of gold and silver set in Grecian patterns.

One of the particular forms of fashion at musicals, receptions, dinners, etc., here may be interesting to those dunes of wealth and leisure on the other side of the ocean who aim to follow European modes. This is the announcing of guests as they arrive by the liveried stucco, who must of course have a specially high pitched voice. Modulation and pitch are even so greatly insisted upon that it is said a clever teacher of voice culture is quietly making a large income by training the lackeys of the beau monde in this special requirement of fashion. Most of these lackeys are dressed in black and are chosen with great regard to their appearance.
It is the fashion at the present moment, though no one seems to know quite who originated it, for men to enter the salons where the soiree or other entertainment is "on" holding their gloves in their hands, but leaving their hats outside, a lackey in the vestibul having relieved them of their headgear. But it is no longer correct for Parisian woman to don her wraps in the cloakroom, where a group of skilled maids can help her with a refractory clasp or ribbon. Now the lady's cavalier goes in search of the wrap and, returning, assists her in donning it. Most women are not especially easy about the condition of their coiffure after a heavy cloak or scarf has been toyed with by an unschooled man, so it is an innovation not at all popular with any one but bossesses, who can thus economize on the wages of the maids, whose charges are high, as their recommendations for honesty and efficiency must be unexceptionable.
CATHERINE TALBOT.

Old-New Crepons.
In the summer materials there is a great tendency toward everything that is transparent, most of the French fabrics being of the nature of very fine voiles or canvases. There is a distinct inclination toward the revival of crepons and crinkled materials of all descriptions, which have scarcely been out of fashion long enough to seem quite new again.
A very pretty gown made recently for a bride was of crepon exactly like the crepons worn four years ago, but trimmed in the fashion with an inch wide white silk fringe put on the gray crepon in the form of true lovers' knots and edging the little pointed epaulets with which the bodice was finished.
As to summer materials, foulard is one of the favorite fabrics for afternoon and visiting gowns, for smart race dresses, and when quite simply made and trimmed only with a little ecru guipure, for quiet occasions at home and for morning wear or when shopping.
The handsomest foulards are those known as the "satin faced" foulards, which have a smooth, lustrous surface, shot, as a rule, with two or more colors. On most of these new foulard gowns are little straps and bows of black ribbon velvet, held in place usually by small diamond buckles.
On every sort of garment this season hundreds of tiny tucks seem to find place, and it is wonderful to think of the amount of skilled labor involved in making some of the blouses and the smart silk shirts, tucked all over, back and front, and trimmed in addition with a profusion of lace frills.
Heliotrope and a bright cerise are presented to us as "the new colors." Heliotrope will certainly catch on, but the cerise is a trifle doubtful.

NATTY COSTUMES FOR THE SEASHORE.

gauze edged with real point lace also affords a pretty background for dainty paintings. One such fan from the atelier of a woman famous for her skill in this work represented a sea idyl of a modern summer girl.
Fans in the fashion of the first empire are particularly charming, for even the most ardent Bourbon will admit that the Empress Josephine was a woman of taste and contentedness. Very what was graceful and artistic. Very alluring in the hands of a pretty blond of course, can be purchased at an expensive materials and mountings, but a handsome fan confers the same distinction of chic as a fine shoe, glove or lace, and even if at first the investment seems a heavy one it should be remembered that an elegant fan is often the salvation of a trying costume.

Feather fans are seen in the shops in all varieties of luxurious mountings, even to those with small gems. Natural white and black feathers are the only possibilities in color for coverings in

IN THE QUEEN'S DINING ROOM.

Even Victoria Is Affected by the Craze For Old Fashioned Furniture.

The revival of interest in the old fashioned styles of furniture has led the modern manufacturers to endeavor to imitate the master makers of a century or more ago. When a manufacturer has succeeded in making something that will please the taste of Queen Victoria, one of the most critical and experienced judges of such things, his success may be said to be signed.
One of the handsomest sets in carved oak has just been ordered by the queen for the dining room of one of her residences. The sideboard is a massive piece covered with carving in a foliage design, the panels being emblazoned with the royal coat of arms. It is a sideboard such as might have adorned the baronial hall of a thirteenth century noble and in durability and wearing qualities of the art work is such as though it might last to be handed down for several centuries. The buffet, with narrow drawers heavily carved, has also its heraldic ornamentation.
High backed chairs of oak, upholstered in leather and having the English crown surmounting the three polished bars of the back, accompany the set. The large oak dining table, too, is rich with carvings, the coat of arms appearing in the oval panels.
Those who can afford it now have the family coat of arms wrought on the furniture bought for dining rooms, as it is in accordance with old fashioned aristocratic ideas. On the sideboard, bristling with the escutcheon of the De Montmorency-Joneses or the Montague-Smythes, is set the emblazoned silver of the family, and the idea from the decorative standpoint is a decidedly successful one, even if the coat of arms was bought from the stationer, the furniture secured on the installment plan and the silver plated. The coat of arms is a tradition from the republican simplicity that has characterized everything in the way of furnishings since the advent of the fad for colonial furniture, houses and decorations.
The inventor of the new men's wardrobes had evidently in mind when he designed these pieces of furniture the unprosperous fellow who cannot afford a valet. These wardrobes have several compartments, made to accommodate the various articles of masculine apparel. A cupboard above just long enough for coats has a crossbar for the wire frames on which they are kept in shape. In the drawers below are flat presses, in which trousers may be laid away when taken off and screwed down so that they will be well creased when again required.
Shoes and a drawer where the linen may be kept without danger of crushing are other blessed innovations. A dressing case and a chiffonier, with the drawers having the divided compartments and the pressing arrangement, are also obtainable now in the first class shops.

In regard to furniture, it may be said the demand for the antique is in line with the demand for old china, prints, pictures and embroideries. A woman of fashion is proud because in her satin wood drawing room of Louis XVI furniture she has a fauteuil upholstered with the brocade coat train which belonged to one of Marie Antoinette's gowns.
Antique cabinets of carved wood are nets for the drawing room, the desk below being ornamented with some bits of china, which show more effectively there than behind the glass.

In the summer furnishings for bedrooms of course the main idea is an appearance of coolness and lightness. Nearly all these bedroom sets are of white enamel. The new wardrobe, with its beveled glass mirror, is sometimes combined with a bureau and cabinet for books, a few narrow shelves being placed upon the usually bare sides for the

A SUMMER WARDROBE FOR $30.
For $30 any girl who can make her own frocks may be comfortably and tastefully clothed for the summer at the seashore or mountains. The way to do this is not at all difficult. Fortunately summer materials are inexpensive. The best frock for evening wear may be of either white lawn or organdie made over a tinted lining of satin or muslin and trimmed with a butcher's cloth can be bought in the shop ready made for $3 or $3.50. A simple rough straw sailor hat may be purchased to go with it for 75 cents. Very nice parasol of plain silk costs $1.50. If after making her other purchases the summer girl has any money to spare, she can buy some chiffon with the satin hem and border of which to make ruffles.

Shirt waists are easy to make. Material for four at 6, 8 and 10 cents a yard, each requiring four yards, will and frocks may be washed up and added to the outfit, with which any girl need not fear to face the criticism of a summer resort audience.

Honey as a Food.
Many people are aware that honey, either simple or prepared in combination with other ingredients, is a desirable medicinal agent in certain cases, as in diseases of the throat, especially those of a mild nature like hoarseness and a dry, inflamed condition, but not so many are aware that as a regular article of food it has a prophylactic and even a therapeutic value which can scarcely be overestimated.
Many sweets are to be taken with caution, as they are liable to impair the action of the stomach or otherwise injuriously affect the system, but honey may at any time be eaten freely, according to the taste of the recipient, and will be found corrective and beneficial. In some cases, especially where the appetite has been pampered and demoralized by hurtful indulgence in unwholesome sweets or other food, the taste for honey will need to be cultivated, but it will almost invariably grow with the restoration of the general physical tone and become an individual characteristic.

DELICIOUS SWEET DISHES.

To make a delicious blancmange mix four heaped tablespoonfuls of arrowroot to a smooth batter by using half a pint of fresh milk. Then place one pint more of milk in an enameled vessel over the fire and put into it the rind of half a lemon. Let the milk boil, then strain it and add to the mixed arrowroot. Pour the back into the saucepan, stir in enough sifted sugar to taste and continue stirring one way round until the mixture thickens considerably. Have a mold, moistened previously with water, and having added a tablespoonful of brandy to the blancmange just before taking it off the fire, pour it into the damp mold to set. Then turn out the mold and garnish with jam, whipped cream or preserved cherries.
For pineapple cream soak one and a half ounces of gelatin in a small quantity of milk taken from a quart of the same. Boil the remainder, and when boiling stir in eight ounces of sugar and two ounces of fresh butter. Rub the pineapple as far as possible through a sieve and then place it and the milk together over the fire. When slightly thickening, add the soaked gelatin, stir for a minute, and lastly turn into a wet mold in which has been placed a layer of small macaroons or ratafias. To color the cream a pretty green pound four ounces of pistachio nuts, flavor them with a trifle of maraschino and add a drop or so of apple green coloring. Pour this into the cream just before the gelatin.
Carrot pudding is an economical novelty. Grate very finely a quarter of a pound (when grated) of young carrots. Mix this with the same weight each of brown bread crumbs, suet, flour and salt. Add a large tablespoonful of milk, a half a pint of water, a little lemon juice, a pinch of salt and a little sugar. Mix well and bake in a buttered mold and boil for one and a half hours.
To make almond puffs roughly pound up a quarter of a pound of sweet almonds and half an ounce of butter. Beat the whites of two eggs stiffly with a quarter of a pound of sugar and add to them the pounded almonds. Line some patty pans with puff paste and fill with the almond mixture. Sift white sugar over the top and bake the puffs a light brown.
Small coffee puddings require ten ounces of bread crumbs and four ounces of sugar in a basin. Beat up two eggs and mix them into one pint of milk and two tablespoonfuls of essence of coffee. Then mix with the bread crumbs and sugar. Pour the preparation into tiny greased molds and steam for an hour till set on the top.
Cardinal Jelly.
Pare two lemons thinly and put their rind and juice in a saucepan with a pint of water, half a pound of lump sugar and an ounce and a quarter of gelatin. When all has melted, whisk until it comes to a boil. Stop whisking and draw the pan aside. When a crust has formed, pour the contents of the pan carefully through a clean tea cloth that has been dipped in boiling water, add the clarified and a few drops of cochineal. Pour the preparation into tiny greased molds and turn out when cold.

narrow edge of lace. The cost of the material need not exceed 25 cents a yard, ten yards of the material and six yards of lining at 10 cents a yard, making the cost, with that of the bolt of lace edging, but $3.60. The best hat may be bought for $2.50. It may be of leghorn, with a trimming of net and roses, or of rough straw in which white chiffon and black wings make an effective chapeau to accompany a white frock. Any inexpensive milliner can prepare a hat for that if she is told that $2.50 is the amount the purchaser is willing to pay.
A second best dress of canvas or blue cost 86 cents. Material for a light jacket or cape should not cost more than $2.50. Another $2.50 will buy material for lingerie. With $2.50 more gloves, collars, ribbons, combs, etc., are provided for. To make a silk blouse five yards of pretty Japanese or wash silk may be purchased for 50 cents a yard. This brings the cost of the outfit up to $25.31, leaving $4.69 for any extra summer gown or to buy braids, etc., to fix over the winter skirts to wear with the shirt waists.

A very small sum will cover the renovations, but new materials should be purchased. Last season's shirt waists

Albert pudding is made with half a pound of sifted sugar, half each of flour, butter and crystallized cherries and six eggs. Work the butter to a creamy consistency, then stir in the sugar, the yolks of the eggs, the flour and the stiffly beaten whites. Lastly, add the fruit cut in quarters and pour the mixture into a buttered mold into the bottom of which have been put some whole cherries. Cover the top of the mold over with a greased paper and a pudding cloth and boil for two hours.

Henry Erickson and Andrew Latula, two boys about 17 years old, were in court this morning charged with trespassing on the Fitchburg railroad. They were fined $5 each but were unable to pay.

It was reported to the police that a freight car had been broken into at the yard. It contained furniture and the seal had been broken off. The boys were found a short distance from the car and they were suspected of having broken into the car.

The boys were Finlanders and were unable to speak very good English. They said their home was in Michigan and they had just come to this city from Boston.

The police made 119 arrests during the past month.

No Quorum For Council Meeting.

Six hot weather patriots of the city council met last evening in response to the call for a special meeting to consider the question of appropriating money for the Independence day celebration. They waited in the council chamber for some time, hoping for the arrival of enough to make a quorum. Finally, in the absence of President Wilkinson, Councilman Armstrong took the chair, and had the roll called. Those who responded to their names were Councilmen Armstrong, Barnard Gallup, Gove, Hastings, and Whitney. There being nothing else to do, the meeting in the history of the city at which there was no quorum present.

The object of the meeting was to act on the proposition to appropriate $300 for the celebration. The committee of arrangements will go on as planned in spite of the failure to get aid from the city and will make another attempt at the regular meeting Tuesday evening, if there is a deficit. The merchants have been subscribing liberally and may fill the amount needed.

AID FROM THIS CITY.

Call For Action From Here For the Soldiers.

Editor Transcript:

There are a great many in our city who were members of the Christian commission during the Civil War. Regular meetings were held in the hall over Burlingame & Ray's store, and many will recall easily the self-denying labors of the ladies who met in that hall in the dark days of '61-'65, and the letters that came from camp containing expressions of gratitude for the barrels sent from this place.

Another hour of conflict is upon us and there is another call for just such work as was done by the Christian commission during the days of the Civil War. Many hearts in our midst are desirous of giving expression to their regard for those they love, who have gone to the front in the cause of freedom and justice.

North Adams does not want to be behind in this matter. Other towns and cities are already organized and are forwarding boxes and barrels, and while our city has not a full company and more in this war as it had in the Civil War, yet a number have gone. North Adams has never yet been behind in any good work, and I do not think it will be in this.

I think many of the devoted women of our city would be glad to united in work of this kind, if another Christian commission could be organized. The men who went to the front in '61-'65 have a beautiful home on 17th street, and I do not doubt that they would gladly open their doors to such work, if some of the ladies who belonged to the commission during the Civil War would take the initiative and call a meeting of all the women of the city regardless of religion or other society affiliation. The Christian commission is already at the front distributing delicacies in the hospitals and cheering the wounded. The G. A. R. and the Women's Relief corps are actively at work, but there is room and need for all to actively engage in this work.

Many ladies of the city remember how they scraped lint, wound bandages and sewed clothes for the boys at the front during '61 and '65, and there is just as much, if not more need of just such work in the present war.

A Test Insurance Case.

City Solicitor Ashe was attorney for the defendant in a curious case which is of local interest. The case has been decided in favor of the clients of Mr. Ashe without trial. It was a suit brought against the St. Jean Baptiste society of North Adams by Lea Roy, widow of Alfred Roy, to recover about $600 death benefit alleged to be due from the society of which the husband of the plaintiff was a member. The defense was that the man was over the age limit of the society when he became a member of the organization and that he became a member fraudulently by stating that his age was 44 years old when he joined the society, and not 46, which was his age.

The constitution of the organization, which is incorporated, does not allow the admittance of any one who is over 45 years of age. The contention of the plaintiff was that the society, admitting the man and paying him sick benefits was liable to carry out the rest of the contract. The defendants held that the officers of the society had no power to change the constitution to admit the man, and that if money had been given him, it was in violation of the constitution of the organization. The lawyers for the plaintiff were Beer & Dowlin and they allowed judgment to be rendered for the defendant without trial. The case is of interest, as it is the first that the society has had, and it was brought as a test case. It is said that the attempt to become members of a benevolent organization by making false statements regarding age is very often made.

A Dangerous Custom.

There has been some well founded complaint since the hot weather began of the method in which the garbage is collected, the cans used through the winter being kept in use still, instead of the special air tight carts. These latter are called for by the contract during the summer months at least, permission having been allowed for the old open cans during the winter. With the arrival of hot weather, the odor from these as they pass is almost unbearable and considerable surplusage has been expressed that the garbage collectors should be allowed to use the open cans when the special carts are provided.

DEPARTURE OF RECRUITS.

Many Local Men With Volunteers Who Received Ovation In Troy.

The city of Troy gave an impressive farewell to the additional recruits of the second New York regiment, who left for the south yesterday. Many local young men, including the parties from this city and Williamstown, who were given an ovation on leaving the station here and in Williamstown Wednesday, found the scenes of farewell duplicated in Troy. And they were included in the Godspeeds that were said there, as they left in bodies of recruits formed mostly of Troy, Glen Falls and Hoosick Falls young men.

There were many impressive scenes as the careful "good-byes" were said, and everyone seemed to realize more fully than ever before the seriousness of the situation which confronts the soldiers. The heroism of the recruits is appreciated more deeply from the fact that they came forward and volunteered to serve their country with the prospect of being immediately sent on with the regiment to the battlefields at Santiago de Cuba without having time to accustom themselves to the southern climate or the arduous duties of life in a military camp. The recruits have had very little drill, and to them the hardships of the life in the United States army are as yet unknown. Everyone of them was enthusiastic, however, and if they enter into the work after reaching their companies with the same spirit their progress will be rapid and in a brief period they will be hardy soldiers.

The rolls of the Troy companies were called at the armory, and every man responded. Captain Dunsbaugh then assumed command and addressed the recruits. He said that the men were now in the United States service and should appreciate the serious matter which enlistment in such service meant. The men, he said, would be obliged to obey the officers strictly and would not be allowed to leave the cars at the various stations at which stops are made. He instructed them to make themselves as comfortable as possible on the cars and to avoid disorderly conduct of any kind. In conclusion the captain told the men that they would be expected to do their best in sustaining the reputation which the third battalion now bears.

At the depot was assembled a crowd of people that filled the large structure nearly full and surged about the cars in which the recruits were soon seated. The recruits shook the hands of friends from the car windows and platforms until the train moved out.

The recruits of Company B, of Cohoes and the Hoosick Falls recruits for Company M arrived on regular trains. Three cars were added to the train from Troy for the accommodation of the soldiers and the cars will be used for the trip to Tampa without change. The men were given an enthusiastic parting as the cars moved out and some members of the out-of-town companies waved American and Cuban flags from the car windows. There was a remarkably large number of ladies in the depot and handkerchiefs were seen to brush many a tear away, while fathers and brothers bid their relatives "good-bye."

The recruits will go from Albany to Tampa via the West Shore, Pennsylvania and Florida, Southern and Peninsular railroads, arriving in Tampa Saturday night, if no unexpected delay is experienced.

The armory at Hoosick Falls, with which company most of the local men went, was the scene of merriment and jollity the evening before, the new recruits, who were domiciled at the armory, celebrating their departure for scenes of greater activity by singing and having a general good time. They slept at the armory last night and had breakfast there yesterday morning, and soon after proceeded to the Fitchburg depot where throng was awaiting them. Enthusiasm abounded and when the train departed for Troy with the brave boys cheer upon cheer greeted them, and the well wishes of all followed them.

The following is the full list of the local men who went:

Company A of Troy—Michael Fowler and James F. McCue, of this city. Company K of Glen Falls—Dennis Sird, of Williamstown.

Company M of Hoosick Falls—Alfred Turkart, Frank B. Whipple, Albert E. Clark, Frank B. Davis, Clarence E. Gallup, of this city; William P. Madden, Daniel F. Beebe, William H. Clearman, Harry H. Rosenberger, Franklin V. Wilden, Patrick O'Keefe, Eugene Prindle, Norman B. Dale, Patrick Dempsey, of Williamstown; William Welsh, of Bennington, Vt.

County Probation Officer.

The justices of the superior court will soon name a probation officer for Berkshire county whose duties will be the same in relation to criminal cases in that court as are similar officer's duties in the police court. The law authorizing the appointment of probation officers for the superior court was passed at the recent legislative session. It does not name specifically any number of the probation officers or state whether there shall be one for every county or otherwise. This will be determined by the justices of the court but it is very probably that one officer will be named for each county or each district attorney district. If the latter plan is adopted, the local official could look after cases in Hampden as well as Berkshire county.

Knights of Pythias Elect.

Olympian lodge, Knights of Pythias, met last evening and elected the following officers: C. C. Lincoln Breckinridge; V. C. Edward L. Worth; P. Herbert M. Gurney; M. of W. George H. Deming; K. of R. S. Elmer J. Coon; M. of E. Clifford B. Fish; M. of E. Fred A. Bedell; M. of A. Eldridge L. Jeffers; trustee for eight months, J. H. C. Pratt. These officers will be installed July 14.

The uniform rank of K. of P. will meet tonight and action will be taken on the Fourth of July celebration.

Illegal Business in Fireworks.

Already the small boys are exploding firecrackers and indulging in different kinds of fireworks in anticipation of the Fourth of July. There has been some comment on this, as to the sources from which the boys obtain their fireworks. Under the license every dealer is supposed to have, these may be sold only on tomorrow and Monday, but many boys have already various kinds of explosives, and are shooting them off, especially in the outskirts of the city. This is also in violation of city rules. It is evident that some dealers are doing an illegal business in fireworks.
